Reception & Dinner at the SC Society Hall 6:00 p.m.

We will board a bus for the drive (six blocks) to the South Carolina Society Hall for a reception and Buffet Dinner. The South Carolina Society Hall is considered one of Charleston's most valuable Adamesque buildings. Built in 1804, the Hall was designed by Charlestonian Gabriel Manigault, a gentleman architect who introduced the Adamesque style to the city after studying in Europe. Manigault's design for the Society's headquarters, of which he was a member, consisted of a two-story brick building on a very high basement, covered with stucco. The first floor contained three rooms used for billiards, a small school the society operated, and quarters for the schoolmaster. A large meeting room and ballroom occupied the second floor. The meeting room also contained a small musician's gallery and a decorative Palladian window, while the ballroom was ornamented with a Neoclassical canopy. In 1825, the portico with Doric and Ionic orders, designed by prominent local architect Frederick Wesner, was added along with the brownstone stairs and iron railings. As a result of damage to the building during the Civil War and the 1886 earthquake the interior was renovated during the Victorian period. The Reception and Dinner at the Society Hall is an optional event ($65 per person) and is not included in the Registration Fee. You will not want to miss our entertainment! We have scheduled a fantastic piano player who you will probably recognize!
